

Method 1 - The quasi-linear approach

- data of the fluid flow field are stored on each processor node
- each node processor calculates trajectories in the whole flow domain
- after completion of trajectory calculation global sums of source terms have to be calculated for each grid block

